Health Care and Medical Services

In Germany, there are general practitioners as well as specialists in each field (e.g., radiologists, optometrists, dermatologists, etc.).

In case of illness, it is normal to go to a general practitioner (Ärzt/in für Allgemeinmedizin) first. They will send the patient to a specialist if necessary. It is recommendable to make an appointment before going to the doctor.

Everyone has free choice in the selection of their doctor. Search portals for Doctors:

- Arzt-Auskunft
- Kassenärztliche Vereinigung

For an appointment you have to bring:

- Proof of valid health insurance (e.g. EHIC card)
- proof of matriculation at the University of Bremen
- ID / Passport

Health Care and Medical Services

At night or on the weekend, we recommend contacting the emergency medical services (phone numbers below) or going directly to the hospital.

Emergency phone numbers:

- Police: 110
- Fire Services: 112
- Emergency Medical Services/ Ambulance: 112

Emergency Medical Care (Nights and Weekends):

- Emergency Doctors: +49 421 / 19292

Pharmacies and Medicine

In Germany, medicine is only available in pharmacies. There are two types of medicine: available with or without a prescription.

The German law on medicine is strict - most medicine is only available with a prescription (e.g. antibiotics) and pharmacies will not provide them without a prescription from a doctor.

Most health insurances generally cover most of the cost of medicine. There might be an additional fee of around 5-10 Euro.

At night or on the weekend, we recommend contacting the emergency pharmacy service (Apotheken-Notdienst). Information on which pharmacy to contact in this case can be found in the newspaper or on the Internet.
